In this newsletter, we'll be going over the new release of ThunderPOS 23.4.1 and previewing the web-based register option that we are making available in the near future.

Version 23.4.1

There are number of features available in version 23.4.1 that we believe that you may find exciting or helpful. Among these are included a new register function that will allow you to select an item and get an exact breakdown of how the price on it is being calculated. This can allow you to more easily tell the interactions between different things that might affect the price, such as promotions or line or invoice discounts, especially if you have applied several of these.

We've also added a new report, which can easily allow you to see items you have outstanding special orders for, and how many you may have purchase ordered for that it. This report is called the Item Status report and is under the items report list.

In addition to this, there are a number of minor improvements and fixes that have been made to the software with this release, including a change to allow printing used price 2 for purchase orders through the label utility, a fix to defaulting labels made through the designer to used or to used 2, various fixes preventing using rental items in places they shouldn't be, allowing for manual credit card transactions for accounts receivable payments, and various other similar changes.

Web-Based Register Preview

Similar to the iPad based version of the register that we discussed last week in this newsletter, we are working on a web-based version of the register, to allow users who are in a more mobile environment to use the software without the need for one of our native clients.

The web register features most the functionality you'll be familiar with, including new, used, and trades, rentals, our extensive promotion system, and much more. It does require a license to use for each concurrent register in use.

As shown above, features like quick searching and advanced searching for items, emailing and printing of receipts, customer accounts and rewards, and many others are going to be available to users. Integrated credit card options will also be available.

Please look forward to a video preview of this new feature in the near future!

We will be closed Monday, May 29th for Memorial Day
